

Idaho's credit unions help families achieve their dreams, whatever the dream might be.

Felix and Camille Haro's dream was to have a family, but that required an expensive in vitro fertilization process. They sold a ton of tamales and had garage and bake sales to raise money to start a family, but it wasn't enough.

A friend suggested that they get a loan from Clarity Credit Union. They scheduled an appointment with Tamara Zimmerman at the Middleton branch and the news was good!

"I couldn't believe it when she called and said, you got it. The money will be in your account tomorrow. Go have a family."

Today the Haro's are the proud parents of twin boys and a baby girl.

"It's pretty cool, right?" asks Nick Fugal, Chief Financial Officer at Clarity. "It's cool to think that by giving a loan, now there's life. And this family has been started."

This dream come true is just one way Idaho's credit unions serve their one million members.

"It's cool to think that by giving a loan, now there's life. And this family has been started."

- Nick Fugal, Chief Financial Officer, Clarity Credit Union