EMPOWERMENT LENDING: IT'S NOT ABOUT YOUR CREDIT SCORE. IT'S ABOUT YOU!

Every consumer's story is different, and credit unions tailor their loans to fit members' unique and specific needs. Whether it's for family planning loans, keys to the door for a first-time home buyer, or a second-chance loan to a member who needs help building credit, credit unions are invested in Main Street.

EMPOWERMENT LOANS

2,521 special loans totaling $300 million

Veterans and military families, families with unique needs, minority households, people with disabilities, first-time home buyers, repriced auto loans

840 home loans to low- and moderate-income borrowers, including veterans, farmers, and rural residents

Credit unions are not-for-profit cooperative financial services providers, owned by the very members using their services.

GIVING BACK: CREDIT UNIONS' DNA

Credit unions reinvest their earnings in Main Street, providing direct financial benefits to their members. Credit unions are your community partners. After all, the nearly 3,000 employees of Idaho's credit unions live here, too! Whether they are collecting school supplies, volunteering at the food bank, or painting houses for the disabled, they're committed to community service
